The Army football eleven will lose five of its strongest players when the first class is graduated next June. The backfield will be cut to pieces as Captain Prichard, Hodgson, Van Fleet and Benedict have played their last game for West Point, while Merrillat, the "forward pass king," will also be

Lieutenant Charles D. Daly, of the 3d Field Battery, who has been head coach of the team for two years, left yesterday for Fort Sam Houston, Tex., to rejoin his command. Just before leaving, he said:
"The Army football team as a whole is considered by the coaches as the best ever turned out at West Point.
"We are unwilling to admit that any team in the country could beat it. Much of the credit for its -remarkable efficiency is due the 'position' fficiency is due the 'position' onches, who worked so hard and faith-ully to give a lot of earnest players he necessary weapons for attack and defence."

Lieutenant Daly's assistants this year were Captain Graves, Captain Sultan, Lieutenants Hammond, Pullen, Thompson, Hayes, Stearns and Stilwell.

Alexander Weyand, the newly elected captain of the West Point team, is well equipped to handle the eleven next fall. Besides being one of the best tackles of the year he is gifted with those qualities which stamp a real leader. His selection was a happy were sold, adding $10,000 to the receipts.

"The Michigan game brought $35,000 into the treasury, the Princeton game added $54,000 more and the Yale game brought in $140,000, making the total for the season more than $300,000. The Harvard management split or gave liberal guarantees at all the games, but the Cambridge treasury has from $150,000 to $170,000 as its part of the receipts for the whole season."

The Lehigh football team will los only two players by graduation nex June—Captain Hoban, right halfback and Fred Green, at left end. Cahall the brilliant halfback, has two more the brilliant haifback, has two more years to play and may be elected can-tain when the "L" men meet next week. Sawtelle is being considered also, but Cahall appears to have the call.

Frank Hinkey, head coach of the Yale team, and Talbott, captain this year, journeyed to Hamilton, Ont., or Saturday to see a Canadian Rugby game. This points the way to further development of the passing game by the Blue eleven next fall.

Through a mistake Rutgers was credited with winning only four game in The Tribune yesterday, when the record should have read won five, lost three, tied one.

The "Yale Alumni Weekly" in the carrent issue comments on the Harvard game and winds up with well merited praise for Frank Hinkey and his methods in saying:

"Frank Hinkey this fall began a three-year connection as head coach of Yale football—an arrangement which trust will not limit the undergrad three-year connection as head coach of Yale football—an arrangement which we trust will not limit the undergraduates in their use of his advice to that sport alone. His programme had to do with the difficult task of building a new Yale football coaching system and of inaugurating a football game which would meet the requirements of touchdowns and result in a game interesting alike to player and spectator. It was a hard and uphill task, but we believe that a foundation was laid upon which he may now build with strong hopes of a solid success later. The keystone of this has been the open game as opposed to the traditional slam-bang game, and the justification for it unquestionably is to be found in its success with public and players alike until, with a comparatively green team to play it (Yale's only line veterans were the left end and tackle), we met probably the strongest Harvard team, playing one of the strongest old-style attacks, that ever ripped and ploughed and banged its way through a Yale eleven. Our confidence in the new system which has been started this year is not in the least abated by the results last Saturday; given the material which we must find in the undergraduate body, and a steady persistence on the lines laid down this year, a successful Yale football era is bound to come."

Without meaning to emphasize the commercial end of football it is interesting to note that on unofficial figures more than 200,000 persons saw the Harvard football team play nine games this fall, and that the total receipts were in excess of $300,000, of which the Crimson's share was something over $150,000.

The figures were compiled by "The Boston Journal" as follows:

"The Harvard management realized before the season began $4,500 from the sale of about 1,500 season tickes to the general public at $3 each. These tickets were good for all games played by the Crimson except those with Princeton and Yale. Then about 2,000 H. A. A. tickets, which are issued only to the Harvard students at $5 each, were apoli, adding $10,000 to the receipts.

The rooter's roar of "Robber!" end in October, but what is that to Quigley? He hastens straight from the dia mond to the gridirons of the Rocky Mountain country. Dropping his indicator, he picks up the horn of the foot ball umpire and is at it again. As a matter of fact, the gridirons of Colorado are not one whit safer than the diamonds of our effete East. Vocal protests are in order there during foot-ball games, and it is nothing out of the ordinary for the crowd to "ride" an official.

John Heydler, secretary of the National League, received a postcard from Quigley yesterday, saying that he had officiated at his last football game of the season. This was the battle for the Rocky Mountain Conference champing him between Conference champ battle for the Rocky Mountain Con-ference championship between Colo-rado College and Colorado School of Mines. But even the end of the foet-ball season brings no reformation in Quigley. Meadow Brook fox hunters had one of the best runs this afternoon that they have enjoyed for some time.

More than twenty-five miles were covered in the chase, during which to throw the pack off his scent.

The meet was at Joe Stevens's grate and twenty-five riders were present to take part in the run.

After a few covers had been drawn, the hounds suddenly opened and point-ed away in a long line. Evidently the scent was a hot one and led in a large circle back of - Hickswille, then around through Jericho and Woodbury, then scent was a hot one and led in a large riders thought there would be a kill. By this time, however, Reynard had his bearings, and just as it was thought that the hounds would close their quarry jumped into a hole and could not be driven out. Among those out were Mrs. James A.
